Box #33: Jean Durfee & Annie Childs Diaries 1920s-2000s

#09-8-29 --- in closet in room 6.

Jean Childs Durfee (1930-2008)

Jean's Diaries 1960 – 2008

Jean began keeping a diary in 1960, her thirtieth year. In 1954 she married Lawrence Durfee, and for most of their married life they lived on Road's End near the lobster pound in Boothbay Harbor.

Jean's record of her own interests and activities provides anecdotal information on the fishing industry, dietary habits, social lives, health concerns and illnesses of families living in the Boothbay Region from 1960-2008. Of special interest are Jean's notes on the price of lobster prior to 1990, the years during which her husband hauled traps for a living.

As a working woman, wife of a fisherman, and an active member of her community, Jean was well acquainted with many Boothbay Harbor, Boothbay, and Southport families. She recorded their private news in her diaries, and clipped newspaper reports of their public news, many of which may be found in the BRHS family files. Jean also recorded and clipped news of consequential state, national and international events which serve as a reminder of the larger world in which she was lived.

Annie Marr Childs (1900 – 1965)

May 22, 2015 Betty Goulette, Jean's sister, came in and asked to borrow or be given her grandmother's diaries. I did so.

Annie's Diaries 1927 – 1958

Annie was Jean's paternal grandmother. All but one of Annie's diaries spanned five years on each page which limited her daily entries to two or three lines. Annie used her diaries primarily to record weather conditions. Occasionally she noted the names of people she knew or places she had been.

Box #34: : BILLY SAWYER CHANDLERY/WRECKING COMMISSIONER

W. E. (Billy) Sawyer ran a hardware & supply store near where Tugboat Inn is now. The building is now a ????. He also had an iceworks on the east side of Southport. The pond is now the town reservoir. The icehouse which was at Pine Cliff burned in ????? Mainly his ice was sold to fishermen rather than being shipped out. He was a wrecking commissioner who acquired old vessels for the purpose of stripping them of their saleable parts for scrap. After stripping them in the Harbor near his business, he towed them to Elwell's Cove in Mill Cove where he would burn them to extract the metal. One such vessel was the Gold Hunter, pictured in the Fuller 1927 movie. One of Sawyer's buildings near Tugboat was dismantled and rebuilt at Barters Is. by Chet Rittall.

ACCOUNT BOOK BOXES (LIST AND INDEX TO CONTENTS)

The Mary Weaver sailed into Mill Cove under her own power but was leaking badly. The idea, according to Carroll Gray, was to sink her in the mud so the mud would work its way into her seams & caulk her. Whatever the plans for her had been, they didn't work. She was one which Billy Sawyer acquired & stripped. She was an attraction in the Cove and all were sorry when a WPA project had her taken apart. Elbridge Giles was in charge and he spent all one winter lugging her in pieces to his house.

The ledgers were given to Cecil Pierce for the Historical Society by Ed Baker whose uncle had bought the Sawyer place & found them there.
